FROM THE FARM...

It is hard to believe Fall is already here! After a very wet Spring and Summer I know I am ready for cooler temperatures along with new kids! Now, is a great time to look your herd over for feet that need trimmed, lice issues and catch-up on vaccinations. Finding time for routine health care in Fall helps to prevent issues in the Winter when goats spend a lot of time in close contact due to cold temperatures.

Being prepared for the arrival of kids before the holidays makes life simpler and reduces the chances of problems! Now, is the time to stock up on heat lights and extra heat light bulbs along with making sure your lights are not only secure but have a secondary method of hanging. Goats spend time pushing and shoving around the warmth of heat lights so make sure your lights will not fall and potentially cause a barn fire.

The MGR office has been especially busy in 2015. It is exciting to see many of you getting caught up on past registrations. I want to thank all of you for your patience in waiting on paperwork this year. 2015 seems to have been the busiest year to date! I have truly enjoyed seeing so many nice examples for the breed being registered.

Our Judges Training was held in Corydon, Indiana this year. I was impressed by the students who attended. While some were not ready to move on to be MGR Judges yet, I am appreciative of the dedication to the breed they presented at the Judges Training. I would like to congratulate our five newest MGR Judges; Vic Leas from Alabama, Rayna & Rusty Lee from Georgia, Jimmy Dowell from Kentucky, & Kristy Shearer from Ohio. As we certify new judges throughout the United States we move closer to the goal of closing our shows to the use of only MGR Certified Judges. I hope to see all of our judges continue to promote correct Myotonic goats in order to preserve the breed.

Show season is winding up for the 2015 season and I would like to thank all of those who have supported the shows and look forward to seeing many more examples of the breed in the ring during 2016!

~Tara

ASSESSING LEVEL OF CONSCIOUSNESS

Editor's Note: Any time you have a goat exhibiting neurological symptoms, immediate intervention can make the difference between recovery and fatality. It is helpful if you can describe accurately to your veterinarian how the animal is behaving. The chart below describes a method for assessing the level of consciousness in your animals.

Level	Definition	Behavior
Hyperexcitability	Rage, mania, frantic motor activities	Striking with front limbs, kicking, charging, excessive vocalization, violent struggling, possibly normal behavior
Alertness	Conscious, observant, responding appropriately to stimuli	Normal
Dementia	Inappropriate responses to external stimuli	Afraid of feed, running into walls, self-mutilation
Stupor	Unresponsive to external stimuli; responsive to painful stimuli	Droopy ears, holding head low, reluctant to move
Depression	Reduced responses to external stimuli and pain	Unwillingness to rise, lack of recognition, lack of appetite, head pressing, propulsive walking
Coma	No response to external or painful stimuli	Recumbent, convulsions
Narcolepsy	Episodic condition in which animals exhibit stupor without motor activity	Rapid eye movement; after the episode animals return to normal

IODINE DEFICIENCY

Iodine deficiency in goats causes changes in the thyroid gland, the organ which controls metabolism. Located under the chin on the front of the neck and behind the larynx, the thyroid gland enlarges to form a goiter when the goat is deficient in iodine. A goiter is an enlarged thyroid gland.

Goiters are not "bottlejaw," which is anemia that is almost always caused by a heavy wormload and occurs directly under the chin. Goiters are not Caseous Lymphadenitis abscesses; CL abscesses occur at lymph glands and when located in the neck area will be under an ear, downward towards the chest, or along the jaw line. Do not confuse it with the "milk goiter" present in newborn and young kids of breeds of dairy heritage (including Boers); that is a thymus gland issue which usually goes away as the kid reaches puberty. Articles that I've written on each of these topics can be found on the Articles page at www.tennesseemeatgoats.com.

Goiters are often nutritionally related. Soils throughout much of the northern and eastern parts of the United States are iodine deficient. Plants of the Brassicas family interfere with iodine uptake by the thyroid gland. This includes plants in the mustard family such as cabbage, broccoli, and turnips. Supplemental iodine will not help correct iodine deficiency in goats eating these plants. You must eliminate them from the goat's diet. The tendency to produce goiters may be inherited; some Swiss breeds that have been linebred tend to carry abnormalities in thyroid function. The Boer goat breed seems to be susceptible to iodine deficiency, resulting in goiters.

Goiters can exist in newborn kids. Thyroid deficiency can cause stillbirths or kids can be born weak and hairless or with very fine haircoats. Such kids are sluggish and grow poorly. They may or may not develop skin lesions. Cobalt deficiency and its accompanying Vitamin B12 deficiency can also cause goiters.

Treatment for iodine deficiency that isn't caused by plants that prevent iodine uptake (see Brassicas family information above) is to add iodized salt to the goat's diet. Many prepared goat feeds use non-iodized mixing salt because the particles are small and mix well. The amount of organic iodine (EDDI) put into prepared feeds is controlled by the U. S. Food & Drug Administration and is not adequate for some iodine-deficient areas. Severe iodine deficiency can be treated more quickly by painting 7% iodine on a hairless part of the goat's body such as the tailweb. Free-choice feeding of kelp -- dried seaweed -- is an excellent way to keep iodine levels up. Kelp isn't always easy to find and can be pricey but consumption per goat is small so overall cost should not be a major concern. A 50-pound bag of kelp lasts a long time and can be mixed with loose goat minerals to encourage consumption. Jeffers carries Thorvin Kelp, one of the best kinds. THE GOURMET GOAT

Goat Kabobs Sans Skewers

- 2 lbs. bite size goat meat chunks
- 4 medium onions, cut in chunks
- 4 green peppers, cut in pieces
- 1 lb. whole mushrooms
- 1 can pineapple rings
- 1 lb. sliced bacon
- Worcestershire sauce and Season-All salt to taste

Spread bacon strips in a large flat pan or cookie sheet. Spread goat meat chunks on top of bacon. Brush with Worcestershire sauce and seasoning salt. Pile on onions, peppers, mushrooms and pineapples. Grill on medium heat for 20 to 30 minutes (or in oven at 350 degrees). Serve on large platter.

Meat and vegetables can be skewered before grilling if you want to take the time, or you can offer your guests skewers and make dinner do-it-yourself shish kabobs.

GOAT TIPS: KEEPING MINERAL TUBS CLEAN

~Judy Balmer

If you are fed-up with having goat berries inside of your 60 lbs. mineral/protein tubs, I have an idea for you. No more goat berries, no more goats walking in the tub, no more kids getting in the tub and getting sticky.

- First find a wooden post or wall where you would like to place the tub.
- Take an empty tub and screw it to the wall/post with several screws to make it sturdy.
- Now lift your new tub and push it tightly into the empty tub on the wall/post.
- Take a few short screws and screw them from the inside of new tub into the old tub keeping them under the lip of the new tub.

Note: This only works for the heavy molasses type tubs. These are the ones that are really sticky. You would not want to use this method using the dry, crumbly type tubs as they will break and possibly harm a kid or your foot if it were to fall on it. To prevent any type of injury you may also want to place it closer to the ground and/or place a cinder block or something under and in front of it. If it were to fall out the block would possibly hold it or prevent a kid from being stuck under it. We usually only use these type of tubs before kidding begins. We feel they can help prevent ketosis in our does if used a month or two before they kid.

The Myotonic Goat Registry was formed in 2005 as a sole ownership registry by Gene McNutt with input from an initial Board of Advisors made up of Dr. Phil Sponenberg and Barbara Roberts. The current Board of Advisors includes Dr. Phil Sponenberg, Cindy Bene, Jason Duffy, Jan Likens and Dian Naumann. The owner and Board of Advisors will make decisions concerning the registry and its procedures. This method of governance is meant to provide Myotonic Goat breeders with a registry that will not have frequent changes, and will have the longevity and consistency needed to successfully promote the Myotonic Goat breed, while at the same time make it responsive to the needs and wishes of the breeders. In 2009, Gene retired and the registry was sold to Tara Lawrence. As the Myotonic Goat Registry grows, additional Board of Advisor members may be added in order to more broadly represent the breeders. The owner, along with the Board of Advisors, will be responsible for providing for its own replacements and/or expansions.

The Myotonic Goat Registry takes into consideration all breeders, from pet owners to commercial meat growers. Regardless of which aspect of this breed appeals to you, the Myotonic Goat Registry is the place for all breeders to register their Myotonic Goats.

The Registry will help breeders promote their goats through sales, shows, and advertising, and will educate the public about the Myotonic Goat and its usefulness in a variety of settings.
